

TRAINING & ENABLEMENT PLAN (OCM)

Aviation Robotics Company — Outbound Motion Curriculum

Full 12-week onboarding curriculum underpinning the Certification Checklist — 2025 Engagement

Note: Recreated from memory as a representative work sample. Company and role names are illustrative. Intended to demonstrate enablement design, not to reproduce an exact original curriculum.

Purpose & Philosophy

The Certification Checklist is the test; this document is the curriculum that gets a rep ready to pass it. The design principle throughout is learn-by-doing over lecture: every week pairs a small amount of framework instruction with immediate, supervised practice on real or role-played accounts. Documentation (GTM Strategy, ICP Scorecard, Cadence Template, Gatekeeper Scripts) supports the training but never substitutes for live coaching — a rep who has only read the playbook is not the same as a rep who has run it under observation.

12-Week Curriculum

Week	Focus	Format	Materials Used	Lead
1	ICP & messaging foundations	Workshop, built jointly with the team rather than presented to them	GTM Strategy, ICP Scoring Spreadsheet	Consultant-led
2	Gatekeeper navigation basics	Role-play in pairs, then live call shadowing	Gatekeeper Scripts	Consultant-led
3	Cadence execution	Hands-on walkthrough building first live cadences	Cadence Template	Consultant-led
4	Objection handling	Recorded call review, pattern identification	Call recordings library, Gatekeeper Scripts §5	Consultant-led
5–6	Co-run: live coaching, first accounts	Reps run real cadences; consultant listens live and debriefs after each block	All playbook materials	Joint
7–8	Co-run: independent stretches with spot-checks	Reps run cadences solo in short stretches; consultant reviews call tags weekly	All playbook materials	Joint, consultant stepping back
9	Documentation ownership handoff	Reps take over updating the ICP Scorecard and objection log themselves	ICP Scorecard, Cadence Template	Internal manager leads, consultant observes
10	Mock certification dry run	Practice run through the full Certification Checklist with feedback, not a real pass/fail	Certification Checklist	Internal manager, consultant advises
11	Formal certification	Certification Checklist administered for real; reps not yet ready continue in Co-Run	Certification Checklist	Internal manager
12	Scaling & train-the-trainer prep	Certified reps practice onboarding a new hypothetical teammate using only the playbook	Full playbook set + README	Internal manager, consultant available for Q&A only

Roles & Responsibilities

Role	Responsibility During Ramp
Outside Consultant	Leads Weeks 1–4, co-leads Weeks 5–9, steps back to advisory-only by Week 10; owns initial playbook creation and quality of first cohort's training
Internal Sales/Ops Manager	Shadows from Week 1, co-leads from Week 5, leads certification and all training thereafter; becomes the certifying authority for all future hires
Reps	Active participants from Week 1 — never passive recipients of a strategy deck; expected to contribute to playbook refinement, not just execute it

Success Metrics Tracked During Training

- Gatekeeper pass-through rate, tracked weekly per rep, to catch coaching needs early rather than at the Week 11 certification gate.
- Certification pass rate on first attempt — a proxy for whether the curriculum itself needs adjustment, not just individual reps.
- Time from first live call to first independently run full cadence, tracked per rep to identify where the curriculum's pacing may need to flex.
- Manager confidence rating (qualitative, from the Certification Checklist sign-off) — deliberately kept as a human judgment call rather than a pure metrics threshold, since readiness to run a relationship-first motion isn't fully captured by call-volume numbers alone.

Post-Engagement Support

A 30-day check-in follows formal handoff at no additional cost, focused on troubleshooting anything that surfaces once the internal team is running the motion without daily consultant involvement — most commonly questions about edge-case accounts that don't cleanly fit the ICP tiers, or coaching the certifying manager through their first solo certification of a new hire.
